folds of the flag he loved so well the honored form of General Sherman lay at rest in the plain but pleasant chamber where he died.

It was a rest well earned. Ripe in his years and full sheathed in his honors, the rancors of the past faded out by the kindly hand of time and the comradeship and friendship of the men whom he had once waged fierce but honest warfare with. He had lived a life plethoric with the best blessing that attend humanity and died honored and mourned by the millions of the reunited nation.

An unstained name, a deathless fame, a vault into the great unknown after a silent and heroic battle with disease that added to the lustre of his renown, who could die more happily than William Tecumseh Sherman, the man who with prophetic eye saw death coming afar off and blanched not at the dreadful apparition? Let the drums be muilled and the flags float low, but let the hearts of the American people rejoice that they can claim such men as he, last but not least of the war's great triumvirate.

Mourning on All Sides. The city fluttered with the emblems of patriotic mourning as it has not done since the other great adopted citizen, General Grant stacked his arms and lay down to die invincible.

It was not the public buildings merely that hung out the colors at half mast, the wealthy avenues, thousands of humble tenements in the squalid streets added their colors to the symbolic grief. Across the street from the four-storied house which vesterday became the shrine for hordes of the inhabitants two silken banners bordered with crape hung down On the house itself the sombre drapings of the doorbell were the only tokens that this was the place toward which the nation's eyes were turned.

The dead man's family indulged in no ostentatious grief. They permitted no curious eyes to look upon the dead, and old comrades and the idly curious were alike barred from the chamber where the

The telegraph wires brought messages of sympathy from far and near, from Europe and Cal ifornia and Mexico and South America. as well as from the nation's capital and all sections of the country until they numbered upward of three thousand. In the General's office in the basement the son and sons-in-law, assisted by Private Secretary Barrett, one of the sin-cerest mourners, passed a busy day reading and assorting the messages and picking out a few of the more important ones for the use of the press.

Placing the Body in the Casket The body will be put in the casket to-morrow and no one but the family and immediate friends will be permitted to look upon the remains. The casket is of oak covered with black cloth and lined with white satin. The handles are plain silver bars, and on the lid is a plain silver plate on which is inscribed the name William Tecumseh Sherman, and the date of his birth and death. While being transferred from here to St. Louis the casket will be placed in a polished oak box with silver trimmings. The body of the General still lies in the room in which he died and is covered with an American flag. Father Taylor called at the house in the afternoon. Major Hoyt Sherman, a brother of the dead General, arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. Major Sher-man lives in Des Moines, Iowa, but was in New Orleans at the Mardi Gras carnival when he learned of his brother's illness. He came on at once. In appearance he resembles General Sherman very

Gen. Nelson A. Miles also arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night, having come on from Chicago to attend the funeral. He will accompany the remains to St. Louis. Many public buildings and stores in this city are draped in mourning and the number will be increased largely within the next two days. A Military Funeral.

NEW YORK Feb. 16 .- The preliminary arrangements for the funeral of the late General have been made. At 11 a. m. Generals Slocum, Howard and Butterfield and Lieutenant Treat, aide-de-camp to General Howard, met at the Sherman residence and consulted with the members of the family about the matter.

It was determined that the funeral cortege should form at 1 o'clock on Thursday next, at the house in West 71st atreet, and move promptly at 2 o'clock in order to get the train in season. The funeral service proper will be held in St. The funeral procession in this city will be made up as follows: The regular army eacort will be under command of Colonel Langdon of the First Artillery. It will consist of all the infantry battal-ions in the vicinity of New York. The cavalry will consist of a troop of regu-lars and troop A of the National Guard. The body will be borne on a cassion. An escort of honor from Lafayette Post G. A. R., will surround the cassion and the pall bearers, who will be in carriages. Following them will come the family and friends in carriages. Then the President and Vice-President of the United States, ex-Presidents Hayes and Cleveland, delegations from the United States Senate and House of Representa tives, the Governor of the State of New York and the mayor of the city. The military part of the procession will follow the carriages in this order

The line of march to the Desbrosses street ferry has not been decided upon yet. The G. A. R. Posts will be under command of Gen. Floyd Clarkson and the National Guard under Gen. Louis Fitzgerald. General Howard has designated Gen.

Daniel Butterfield as Marshal in charge of the column. Veterans of the 7th Regiment and those of other regiments will be assigned to positions at the ferry to receive th cortege on its arrival there. At the New Jersey end of the ferry will be stationed posts of veterans from that State. G. A. R. posts along thp route whe de sire to pay honor to the remains will be notified in season. The pallbearers will be: Gen. J. M. Schofield, Gen. O. O. Howard, Rear-Ad-

L. M. Dodge, Gen. J. M. Corse, Gen.
Wager Swayne and Gen. L. L. Woodford.
General Clarkson expects to have 10,000 men in line from New York and Brook-lyn and 2,500 from New Jersey. Generals Howard and Slocum were asked by the family to take entire charge of the funeral and accompany the body to St. Louis. The interment will be in Calvary Cemetery in that city. The funeral in St. Louis will strictly military in character. Mayor Grant's secretary, on behalf of the mayor, offered the use of the City Hall to the family as a place for the body to lie in state in, but the offer was de-
